This course

- Elementary Latin II
- Semester 6
- An overview plus six lectures
- About one hour in total

¶ 0.2

This course continues directly from Latin 101 B,

What you already know

- Cases show each noun's job
- First and second declensions
- Adjectives agree with nouns
- Present tense of two conjugations

¶ 0.3

You learned adjectives that agree with their nouns, and the present tense of the first and second conjugations.

Where you stand

Already known

- Present tense
- First and second declensions
- Simple sentences

Still to learn

- Past and future tenses
- Third, fourth, fifth declensions
- Pronouns and relative clauses

¶ 0.4

What you cannot yet do is talk about the past or the future, use most Latin nouns,

Lectures 1 to 3

1. Third and fourth conjugations
2. Imperfect and future tenses
3. The third declension

¶ 0.5

Lecture three introduces the third declension, the largest and most important family of Latin nouns, together with third-declension adjectives.

Lectures 4 to 6

4. The perfect system

5. Pronouns and the last declensions

6. Reading Caesar and Catullus

¶ 0.6

Lecture six brings it all together by reading real passages from Caesar and Catullus, and points the way forward.

Three big ideas

- Stems carry the meaning
- Tenses mark time and completion
- Read in Latin order

¶ 0.7

Third, reading in Latin order: with practice, you can understand a sentence from left to right,

Before you begin

- Latin 101 B or equivalent
- Classical pronunciation
- V sounds like w, c is hard
- Say every form aloud

¶ 0.8

You should have finished Latin 101 B,

Before you begin

- Latin 101 B or equivalent
- Classical pronunciation
- V sounds like w, c is hard
- Say every form aloud

in which v sounds like English w and c is always hard.

How to study
